

Access to care

is a fundamental human right

Yet half the world's population lacks access to the health services they need

That is why we have committed to expanding access to care in underserved communities for 400 million people a year by 2030

as part of our goal to improve the lives of 2.5 billion people a year by 2030

To deliver on this commitment we are...

driving digital and technological innovation across the health continuum developing new business models and financing solutions building strong partnerships within an ecosystem of collaboration
